COPY NO. — SERIES

LIMIT DISTRIBUTION

The attached paper, "The Aftermath of Cuba", is a first effort by the Northern Department to estimate the effect the Cuban crisis may have on future Soviet policies. The paper was made available to the Embassy by Heath Mason, head of the Northern Department, who described it as an attempt to devise a framework of ideas and assumption which might be useful in sifting evidence on Soviet reactions and intentions as it becomes available. Mason added the usual caveat that the paper reflects strictly working level views and has no endorsement outside the Northern Department. Copies have been sent British Embassies Moscow and Washington for their comments.
